Dear Dick:

I am sorry to bore you with my lousy printing but this was the only way I could see to transmit the necessary information.

I will be in my office in Pasadena Monday if you wish to give me a buzz; otherwise, there is a reasonable possibility I will be in Washington sometime toward the latter part of next week, in which case I will call you. I feel we should have a discussion, if possible with you and your boss, about some of the ideas contained in the attachment.

Sincerely,

A solid black rectangular redaction box covering a signature.
